Core

I don't typically gravitate toward a "blade" design paddle, so I was surprised with the playability of this paddle. It feels solid on ground strokes with little to no negative feedback on off center hits. The added length (1/2" longer than the XJ-900) was a plus at the net, "reaching" for unattackable dinks in the kitchen. The Reacher sports a graphite skin and polypropylene core, for maximum touch and feel anywhere on the court. Very solid on drives and putaways. Again, Topp uses high quality materials and design, and at $110.00, this graphite paddle represents a superior value for someone looking for the benefits a blade paddle provides.
